What to include

A free reference sheet for preparing and protecting household records.

Use only what applies to your household. Carry the minimum useful set; protect fuller records at home.

Identity and residency

Permitted copies of passports, birth certificates, driving licences, citizenship and residency papers. Check validity. Record where originals are kept; do not assume copies will be accepted for official use.

Household and legal records

Relevant marriage, adoption, custody, will and authority-to-act records. Keep existing official documents intact. This pack contains organization tools, not legal instruments or government application forms.

Insurance and accounts

Relevant home, health, vehicle and other insurance records. Keep provider and masked account references where helpful. Full access credentials belong elsewhere.

Property and recovery

Ownership or tenancy evidence, possession inventories, photographs and receipt references that may help later recovery or a claim. The insurer or authority decides what evidence it accepts.

Care and pets

Current person and pet profiles, existing care plans and medicine lists, and relevant health or pet ownership records. Copy current professional instructions; do not invent treatment advice.
